

Study.eu wins prestigious .eu Web Award 2019

- Study.eu wins the prestigious .eu Web Award among more than 130 nominees
- The awards are given every year to the best websites operating with .eu domain names

Brussels, Belgium, 25 November 2019. Study.eu, the Hamburg-based study choice platform for Europe, wins the .eu Web Award in the “Laurels” category. The awards are organised every year by EURid, the European Commission-appointed organisation in charge of .eu domains, of which there are currently more than 3.6 million.

Annual award for the best .eu websites

The goal of the .eu Web Awards is to enhance the visibility of innovative, beautiful, and impactful .eu websites. In an initial stage, 139 nominees collected thousands of user votes to make it to the finalists’ stage. An expert jury then picked the winners for each of the five categories. The “Laurels” award was presented by Member of the European Parliament Patrick Breyer.

“As a truly European company, we are thrilled and humbled to receive this award,” says founder & CEO Gerrit Bruno Blöss. “It’s an honour to be recognised like this.”

Other winners include Old-Love.eu, a European art project, and the Green European Journal, Europe’s leading political ecology magazine. The ceremony was hosted by BBC news presenter Sally Bundock and included a musical performance of UK singer-songwriter James Morrison.

Winners will be promoted at Brussels Airport

All award winners will also receive a 2-month promotional campaign at Brussels Airport, on billboards at gates A45/A46. “We are really excited about this opportunity,” says Blöss. “Mobility is at the heart of our mission. The more students we can inspire to go abroad, the better!”
